Corporate Game Divisions & Fees

"A" Division This division is for businesses with more than 50 employees and spouses. (See rules #1 and 2 concerning spouse participation.) "A" Division Teams may have an unlimited number of participants on their roster. All participants may sign up for unlimited "B" Division events. Points are awarded in each event, the team with the most points in the "A" Division at the end of the competition is declared the Corporate Games "A" Champion.

"AA" Division This is for smaller businesses with a limited number of employees and spouses, usually 20 or less participants. Every member of the team may participate in all events with no limit in the number of employees on the roster. Points are awarded in each event, the team with the most points in the "AA" Division at the end of the competition is declared the Corporate Games "AA" Champion.

"B" Division (You may have as many "B" Teams as you want.) This division is for anyone wanting to join in on the fun. Additionally, members of any "A" or "AA" Division team may play in a "B" Division event. Example, Joe Smith and John Doe are on the Parks and Recreation "A" team roster, but were not picked to play darts for their "A" team. They may play in the "B" dart tournament. The "B" division is also set up for anyone that does not have a team in the "A" or "AA" but would like to play in some of the corporate game events. No cumulative team points are kept for "B" Division events.
